Overview of course content and policy: This course focuses on theory and research concerning issues in the area of socialization. In the first part of the term, we will examine the topics of moral judgment, the development of moral behaviour and the contribution of gender and sociocultural factors to moral development. Classes in the first part of the term consist of lecture/discussion. In the second part of the term, class members will examine other selected issues relevant to socialization processes and social development in the context of seminar presentations.

Examination: There will be a term examination (essay format) on October 9. The exam covers material from class lectures and from the required reading during the first part of the term.

Seminar presentation and paper: During the second part of the term, there will be seminar presentations concerning salient controversies in the area of social development and socialization. Each student will choose a seminar presentation topic early in the term from a list provided by Prof. Dion. Each student will also submit a paper on that topic. More information about the format for the seminar presentation and the paper will be provided when the topics are chosen.

Seminar participation/commentary: In addition to your own seminar presentation and paper, seminar participation (taking part in class discussion, asking questions about others' seminar presentations) is another component of this course. More details about the format for seminar participation during the second part of the term will be provided at that time.

E-mail from you concerning this course should be sent from your University of Toronto e-mail address, either your UTSCID or your UTORID.

Evaluation:

The weighting of each component of evaluation is as follows:

- Examination (in class on October 9): 35%
- Seminar presentation: 25%
- Paper: 25%
- Seminar participation/ commentary: 15%

Required Reading: There is no textbook to purchase. Assigned chapters from Lickona's edited book, Moral development and behavior are on 3 hour reserve in the UTSC Library. Assigned journal articles are available on-line through the UTSC Library website using PsycARTICLES (Proquest) or through the e-journals option.
