Welcome to PSYC22-Infancy

Course Description: Infants must learn to navigate their complex social worlds as their bodies and brains undergo incredible changes. This course explores physical and neural maturation, and the development of perception, cognition, language and social-emotional understanding in infants prenatally until preschool.

Instructor: Dr. Anna Michelle McPhee (she/her)

Bio: Hi everyone! My name is Dr. McPhee. I am very excited to be teaching PSYC22 this semester! Here's a little bit about me: I completed my PhD in developmental psychology at the University of Toronto. My research focuses on how young children start to understand different types of social affiliations. Specifically, I am interested in investigating the different types of social cues that are used by children to detect and infer kinship relationships between a mother and child, as well as the developmental trajectory of this ability. In my spare time, I enjoy going on walks with my puppy named Kevin.

Land Acknowledgement

We wish to acknowledge this land on which the University of Toronto operates. For thousands of years it has been the traditional land of the Huron-Wendat, the Seneca, and the Mississaugas of the Credit. Today, this meeting place is still the home to many Indigenous people from across Turtle Island and we are grateful to have the opportunity to work on this land.
